LETTER FROM FORMER STUDENT

Casper, Wyoming, Nov. 19, 1911.

Dear friends:

There is not a student in Berea's halls today that loves the college and workers more than I do. I realize what it has meant to me to have an opportunity of attending Berea College. We boys of Eastern Kentucky, with the exception of a very few, would never have opened our eyes upon this vast world of opportunities had it not been through the encouragement and aid of Berea college.

I will tell you something of my location. Casper, Wyoming, is the county seat of Natrona County and is situated on the North Platt river. It is a very beautiful little town, having the river on one side and the Casper mountains, a range of the Rockies on the south. The mountains have been covered with snow since October, 11th. The town has about four thousand population, and is growing rapidly. Two hotels of the town register weekly over one hundred strangers coming to make this town their home. The cause of this is the opening of a large oil field near the town. New wells are being opened each week, with wonderful results. Many "gushers" are now to be seen. A second reason for the increase in population is the construction of a new railroad thru from Thermopolis to Cheyenne. The Burlington road extends from the Pacific coast thru to Thermopolis, Wyoming, just east of the National Park, then from Galveston, Texas, to Cheyenne, so you see a few hundred miles of road here will connect the Pacific coast of the Northwest with the Gulf coast at Galveston; Texas. This means a great deal for the citizens of Casper.

I might further say the town has four churches, a public library, electric light plant, fire department, both a graded and high school, and then the other side, a dancing hall, pool halls and seven saloons.

MEANING OF CHRISTMAS

The birthday of Jesus Christ ought to mean something to every body.

The greatest musician that ever lived composed an Oratorio about the birth of Christ, and its songs are all in the words of the Bible. This Oratorio, called the Messiah, is to be sung in Berea College Chapel, Tuesday night, Dec. 19th, by 100 voices. Those who can get to hear it and those who cannot, will alike enjoy reading these sublime words.

There is the prophesy of His coming, the story of His sufferings, and the picture of His final triumph.

God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John iii. 16.

The Messiah.

PART I.

RECITATIVE.—(Tenor).—Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, saith your God; speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem; and cry unto her that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned.

The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God.

AIR.—(Tenor).—Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill made low: the crooked straight, and the rough places plain:

CHORUS.—And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

REC.—(Bass).—Thus saith the Lord of Hosts; Yet once, a little while, and I will shake the heavens, and the earth, the sea, and the dry land; and I will shake all nations, and the desire of all nations shall come.

The Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to His temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, He shall come, saith the Lord of Hosts.

Malachi iii. 1.

AIR.—(Bass).—But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for He is like a refiner's fire.

REC.—(Alto).—Behold! a virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel, God with us.

AIR.—(Alto and Chorus).—O thou that tellest good tidings to Zion, get thee up into the high mountain: O thou that tellest good tidings to Jerusalem, lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God!

Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee.

REC.—(Bass).—For, behold, darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people; but the Lord shall arise upon thee, and His glory shall be seen upon thee, and the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

AIR.—(Bass).—The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: and they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined.

CHORUS.—For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given: and the government shall be upon His shoulder: and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace.

THE PASTORAL SYMPHONY.

REC.—(Soprano).—There were shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night.

REC.—(Soprano).—And lo! the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

REC.—(Soprano).—And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people; for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.

REC.—(Soprano).—And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying:

CHORUS.—Glory to God in the highest, peace on earth, good will toward men.

REC.—(Alto).—Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened and the ears of the deaf unstopped; then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb shall sing.

AIR.—(Alto).—He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: and He shall gather the lambs with His arms, and carry them in His bosom, and gently lead those that are with young.

AIR.—(Soprano).—Come unto him, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and He shall give you rest. Take His yoke upon you, and learn of Him, for He is meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your soul.

PART II.

CHORUS.—Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.

AIR.—(Alto).—He was despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief.

CHORUS.—Surely He hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows. He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon Him.

REC.—(Tenor).—Thy rebuke hath broken his heart; He is full of heaviness. He looked for some to have pity on him, but there was no man, neither found He any to comfort Him.

AIR.—(Tenor).—Behold and see if there be any sorrow like unto His sorrow.

REC.—(Soprano).—He was cut off out of the land of the living; for the transgressions of Thy people was He stricken.

AIR.—(Soprano).—But thou didst not leave His soul in hell; nor didst thou suffer Thy Holy One to see corruption.

CHORUS.—We will praise Thee, O Lord, from this time forth and forevermore.

AIR.—(Soprano).—We will praise Thee, O Lord, from this time forth and forevermore.

CHORUS.—We will praise Thee, O Lord, from this time forth and forevermore.

If a check is lost in the mail or otherwise, notify the bank at once so payment can be stopped. Be careful about giving your check to a stranger. This is the case of many friends and you owe it to your bank to be extremely cautious.

Small Accounts

There are many persons in this county who feel, possibly, that their business does not warrant the keeping of a bank account, but who would, in reality, be greatly benefitted thereby.

This is a mistaken idea. A bank account is valuable to every person who transacts business.

You are enabled to keep your money where it is safe yet it is available in part or whole at any time.

You can pay all bills by check. This gives you a receipt for every dollar paid, for all checks are returned to you after having been paid by your bank.

The fact that you possess a bank account gives you a better standing among business men and enables you to establish a credit with your bank when you have need of it.

We welcome small accounts at this bank.

Geo. W. Cable in Kentucky—Lincoln Institute—Kentucky Loses Ex-Mayor Woods of Richmond—O'Rear's Successor Chosen—McCreary takes Office

Postoffice makes Money—Mine Disaster—Taft sends another Message—National Politics—Nations at War—Chinese Revolution—Tin Plate

POST OFFICE PAYS EXPENSES

For the first time in twenty-eight years the Postoffice Department shows a surplus instead of a deficit. Mr. Hitchcock's administration began two years ago with the largest deficit on record, $17,479,770. This has all been wiped out and a small surplus is left. The postal savings bank has proved a success and plans are being made to secure parcel post within a year.

MINE DISASTER

A coal mine explosion in the Cross Mountain mines at Briceville, Tenn., has entombed many men, and it cannot be told how many are killed. The explosion occurred eight hundred feet underground and a couple of miles from the opening, and when the mine became filled with smoke it was very difficult to rescue the helpless men. It is supposed to leave fifty widows and three times as many orphans.

TAFT'S SECOND MESSAGE

President Taft has sent a second message to Congress, concerned largely with foreign relations. It explains why troops were sent to the border in the recent Mexican revolution. The President urges the adoption of the pending arbitration treaties and discusses our relations with several of the world powers, England, China, Japan and Russia.

PRESIDENTIAL POLITICS

The Republican National Committee has met to make arrangements for the presidential nominating convention next summer. Opposition to the present administration developed when the administration candidate, Mr. New, of Indiana, was proposed for chairman of the powerful subcommittee on convention arrangements. Friends of Col. Roosevelt are urging his nomination.

NATIONS AT WAR

The Turko-Italian war is provoking the most awful atrocities of modern times, it being reported that the Italians have buried Turks alive up to the neck, afflicting them and leaving them to starve. Persia has appealed to England to protect her against the aggressions of Russia.

PROGRESS IN CHINA

Prince Chun, who has acted for the five year old emperor of China, has been driven from his regency. The rebels captured Nanking, the ancient capital of the empire, but the imperialists recaptured Hankow, which the revolutionists have long held and which had many munitions of war. There is a truce of some days. Whether China will be a limited monarchy or a republic cannot yet be told.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

OF TIN PLATE

Tin plate exports in October were twelve times as much as the imports of that article. The quantity exported in the month of October, 1911, was 15,941,593 pounds valued at $533,997, and the imports for the same month aggregated 1,266,877 lbs. valued at $48,284.

ADOPT NEW PLAN OF DISCIPLINE

AT THE STATE UNIVERSITY—COMMITTEE TO PUNISH DELINQUENTS.

STUDENT RULE SATISFACTORY

To Create a Sentiment Against All Forms of Dishonesty in the Institution Is the Plan.

Lexington.—By a vote of 368 to 183 the students of Kentucky State University in a mass meeting adopted the honor system, by which all questions affecting college life are to be settled by a self-government organization, of which all students of the university are members, and of which the fundamental principle is that the students shall be put upon their honor to obey the regulations. Trials and penalties are prescribed for violations. The system is to go into effect on the opening of the 1912 team next February. President Henry S. Barker and Vice President James G. White have both heartily endorsed the movement, which has been under consideration by the students for the past year. Thomas Earl, president of the senior class, presided at the meeting, and the constitution, which will form the basis of the new system, was read by N. G. Rochester, chairman of the committee which had been selected to prepare it. The principal clauses of the constitution, which embody the objects of the system, are as follows:

To create a sentiment against all forms of dishonesty in the institution; to report to the executive committee all dishonest conduct of any student in the institution; to create a sentiment against all forms of cheating on tests and examinations by reporting same to the executive committee; to enforce all laws of the university that tend to uplift morally the student body.

FAMILY DOG MOTHERS A PIG.

Unusual Occurrence Noted With Interest at Georgetown.

Georgetown.—The scientists in this section are "sitting up and taking notice" of some very peculiar circumstances recently brought to light. Mrs. Colby T. Jenkins, a lover of pets, has had an unusual one thrust upon her in an uncommon manner.

In hog-killing season Mr. Jenkins, a wealthy farmer, found that a Berkshire sow had been killed, leaving behind her two tiny pigs. These he promptly brought to his wife, wondering how to provide for them.

Mrs. Jenkins had successfully raised colts, calves and even pet rabbits on milk administered through bottles, and served via nipples, and her husband felt that she could surely help him out of this dilemma.

The pigs were put under an outbuilding while the thrifty housekeeper was trying "to find a way," when, to their utter amazement, they discovered that the family dog, who had a litter of pups, had already solved the problem for them. She was fostering one of the sucklings, the other one dying.

EDITOR FOR CLERK OF SENATE.

L. C. Littrell, Editor Owenton Democrat, a Likely Candidate.

Frankfort.—Leslie C. Littrell, editor of the Owenton Democrat, is a candidate for clerk of the state senate at the coming session of the general assembly. Mr. Littrell has been county superintendent of Owen county public schools and was a candidate for the nomination of state superintendent of public instruction at the last Democratic primary. He also served in the last house of representatives, and has had the necessary experience in public life to make him one of the strongest available candidates for clerk of the senate.

GIRL MYSTERIOUSLY KILLED.

Rockport.—Lying on the floor in a pool of blood with a shotgun by her side, Gertrude Kirby, the daughter of a coal miner at Williams, was found by neighbors, who were attracted there by the shot that ended the girl's life. A jagged wound in the girl's breast told its own story. The death of Miss Kirby created a sensation in the little town, where she was well known. No clue has been obtained to the one who fired the fatal shot, but the police are working on the case.

LEBUS BUYS FARM.

Lexington.—A deed to the Claiborn farm of 347½ acres, which was purchased from J. K. Newman, of New Orleans, by Clarence Lebus, in October, was filed with the county clerk. The farm is five miles from Lexington and the consideration was $45,001. This is the third tract of land acquired by Lebus in Fayette county. He also owns about 600 acres in Harrison county.

TO BE HORSE CENTER OF U. S.

Lexington.—It was reported here that a number of eastern millionaires have formed a syndicate which will buy several great farms near Lexington and will transform them into trotting farms, making Lexington the trotting horse center of the United States.

PEONAGE IS CHARGED

Against Contractors—Negroes Said to Have Been Whipped and Shot When Attempting Escape.

London.—Indictments were returned here by the federal grand jury against nine men, railroad contractors, for the alleged crime of peonage, said to have been committed by these men in building a branch road for the Stearns Lumber Co., on the Kentucky & Tennessee railroad, near Stearns, Ky. Those indicted are: Allen M. Cook, Merritt B. Evans, Scott Keeton, Pitney Phillips, Charles Gardner, Joseph B. Elliot, Perry Bird, Charles Flynn and Maxine Lewis. They are indicted in fifty-six counts and charged with holding a large number of colored people in a state of involuntary slavery.

The indictment also charges that when they attempted to escape, they were pursued, brought back, whipped and in some cases shot. Judge Cochran has called a special term of the federal court, to convene at London, Monday, February 5, 1912, to try these cases alone. There are a large number of witnesses, and it is estimated that it will take from ten days to two weeks to complete the trials.

GARRARD COUNTY "HEAVIES."

Large Body of 200-Pounders Will Attend Inauguration.

Lancaster.—Three hundred or more of Garrard's citizens are making arrangements to attend the inauguration of Gov. McCreary on December 12. D. C. Sanders is recruiting what he terms the "McCreary Heavies," a company to be composed of fifty men, not one of whom will weigh under 200 pounds. Representative-elect John Farra hopes to get a special coach to go through to Frankfort.

Lincoln county will also send a large delegation to be known as a Marching club. The Interior Journal will print ribbon badges with "Lincoln County Democracy, 291 Majority for McCreary," in big black letters for the local Democrats to wear in the great parade.

STATE ELEVEN'S NEW CAPTAIN.

Lexington.—William Coleman Harrison, of Shelbyville, who was the star tackle of the State university football team this season, was chosen by his teammates captain of the team for 1912, his election being unanimous and his nomination without opposition. Harrison became a member of the team in 1910. He is one of the most popular students at the university and besides being a star in football is also one of the best basketball players at the university. Although Harrison will graduate from the college of agriculture next June he will return for a post graduate course, and as he has been only two years on the football team he will be eligible to play in all games.

TEACHERS IN CONVENTION.

Conferences in Progress At Marion and Hopkinsville.

Marion.—The First District Teachers' association met in annual session here. The local teachers and citizens are lending their assistance to welcome the strangers and make them feel at home. Nearly 600 teachers arrived on a special train, and homes were obtained for all of them. Superintendent James U. Snyder and Miss Margaret Moore, of the Marion city schools, met the teachers' special at Paducah.

WILL DEVELOP COAL PROPERTY.

Whitesburg.—The Kentucky River Consolidated Coal Co., composed of eastern capitalists, owning some 50,000 acres of choice coal and timber lands in Southern Letcher and Perry counties, along the line of the Lexington & Eastern railroad, make the announcement that they will soon take steps looking to the development of their property. Hundreds of men will be employed. It will be necessary to build some spurs of railroad out from the L. & E. to reach the property.

BIBLE IN EVERY HOME.

Maysville.—The Mason county auxiliary of the American Bible society will hold its annual meeting at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday, December 10. The report of the secretary will show a copy of the Bible had been placed in every home where they would accept it.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS.

Richmond.—The annual convention of the Madison county Sunday-schools met here December 4 and 5. President J. G. Crabbe planned an interesting program for the occasion. General Secretary Joplin, of Louisville, and W. J. Vaughn, field agent, made addresses.

VERDICT FOR CROFT.

Marion.—The suit of H. B. Williams against P. B. Croft for $30,000 damages which has been on trial here all week, resulted in a verdict in favor of Croft, who was represented by Congressman Ollie M. James and Attorneys Blue and Nunn.

MC CREARY'S HOME COUNTY.

Richmond.—Arrangements have been completed for a delegation of more than 1,000 persons from this county to attend the inauguration of Gov. McCreary on December 12. The delegation will march as a body in the parade.

DURBAR AT DELHI MOST GORGEOUS

Splendor of Ceremony Never Before Equalled in India.

GREAT DISPLAY OF JEWELS

George and Mary, Seated on Imperial Thrones of Hindustan, Witness a Wonderful Pageant.

Delhi, India, Dec. 12.—Amid scenes of splendor never before equalled even in India, the country of marvelous pageants, nor in any other land in modern times, George and Mary,

The Great Durbar Procession.

king and queen of Great Britain, were recognized today as emperor and empress of India. Up to their thrones marched the proudest chiefs of Hindustan and there did homage. The ceremony was without precedent, for never before has a British emperor of India come to Delhi, the ancient seat of the kings of India, to assume his title. The Durbar, for which elaborate preparations had been under way for months, took place in a great camp to the north of the city, some five miles square. The temporary population of this camp is about a quarter of a million, and it is furnished with all the conveniences of modern life, including 31 post offices, ten telegraph offices and even electric light, railways, motor cars and taxi-cabs. There the people gathered beautiful lotus flower of diamonds. She was garbed in the white and gold embroidered robe worn at the coronation.

Close beside the Imperial thrones when the twenty-four state trumpeters with their silver trumpets heralded the durbar were, of course Lord Hardinge, viceroy of India, and Lady Hardinge.

Most spectacular was the grand review of troops, about 90,000 in number. Most of these were native troops, and they were garbed in the most gorgeous uniforms in the world. The rajahs and other native princes present brought their own elephants, the size of the animal depending on the rank of its owner, and the huge brutes with their magnificent howdahs and other trappings added for the durbar have been amusing themselves for several days with polo, hockey and military tournaments and other festivities.

Display of Jewels is Wonderful. The durbar proper took place in an immense semi-circular amphitheater on the historic ridge where a few Englishmen once made a heroic stand against the revolting natives. In the center of the semi-circle was a throne of gold and silver surmounted by a copper dome. Taking his seat on this, George received the homage of the rulers of the "dim millions" of his subjects, about 150 ruling princes of Hindustan. These Presents for Indian Subjects. The king and queen brought from England a vast number of presents for their Indian subjects, including a thousand plum puddings made in the Buckingham palace kitchens, and a great number of rich cakes, York hams and Stilton cheeses. Then there are rolls of English linen, piles of Buckinghamshire, honiton and point laces, illustrated books, fancy leather goods, silverware of all kinds, British silks and velvets, pictures and photographs and a great variety of other articles.

200 ENTOMBED IN TENNESSEE MINE

BLASTS AND FIRE WHICH FOLLOW MAKE SUCCESSFUL RESCUE ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE.

GOVERNMENT GIVES QUICK AID

Explosion of Dust Chokes the Shafts and Wrecks the Entire Workings—Victims Believed to Be Miles into Depths of the Mine.

A muffled roar a pillar of flame at the mouth of the Cross Mountain coal mine of the Knoxville Iron Co., and 207 men were imprisoned, dead or alive, over a mile deep in the bowels of the mountain. An explosion of "dust" shortly after the miners had descended for their day's work at 7:30 o'clock was responsible for the disaster.

Briceville, Tenn.—Seven dead men were discovered sitting upright in a train of mine cars in Cross Entry No. 24, two miles from the mouth of the Cross Mountain mine. Eight torn and mangled bodies were also removed. Nearly 200 men remain, alive or dead, to spur the force of heroes to further efforts.

Hope of finding any of the victims of the explosion alive has almost entirely departed. Even the sorrow-stricken families, keeping a lonely vigil beside the mouth of the tomb of their loved ones, are despairing.

The bodies of the victims taken out clearly showed that the force of the explosion must have been terrific, as they were battered as if hurled against the roof or sides of the workings.

Tolling Without Food.

For more than 36 hours every surviving miner in this region had toiled with no thought of food, sleep or pay to remove the debris and force fresh air into the innermost recesses of the mine.

They practically had penetrated to the main entry head, nearly three miles in. They expect to be ready soon to work the cross entries, in which the great mass of bodies were caught by the force of the blast.

Black damp developed and stopped progress for a time, but soon the silent force pushed dauntlessly on, some of them till they were carried out overcome by the noxious gases.

Thousands of the morbidly curious flocked into Briceville and crowded about the main entry of the mine. They saw nothing but the pitiable grief of the stricken families.

Every Family Affected.

There is hardly a family in the entire Coal Creek Valley that has not felt the touch of death. The problem of caring for widows and orphans will be a grave one, requiring immediate solution. Certainly Briceville will be unable to care for her living with most of her wage earners numbered among the dead.

Food is scarce, but plentiful supplies are promised from Knoxville. So far there has been little physical suffering among families of those who lost their lives.

It has been impossible to get any authentic figures on the exact number of men in the mine when the explosion occurred. Mine officers have given out no statement and it has been impossible to get any check on the men who went to the work of rescuing.

Work of Rescue Slow.

Work of rescue moved slowly partly because most of the entombed miners are believed to be two miles from the opening and because of deadly black damp. The latter caused all work to be stopped for a time, but it was resumed later.

Electrical devices for moving cars in the workings were shattered by the explosion and debris cleared away in the tunnels is being hauled by mule cars to the surface. Mine experts said it would be days before each lateral had been penetrated, and stated when all bodies would be found was but guesswork. It is in the laterals that the most bodies are expected to be found.

At least 10,000 persons have visited this hamlet and willing workers were many. George P. Chanler, president of the Tennessee Coal Co., is in charge of the relief work. He divided the men into gangs of 50 and sent each shift into the workings for hours. Even when the air in the mine was at its best they could not work long in there.

"Billy the Kid" Arrested Abroad.

Baltimore, Md.—Will Burke, alias "Billy the Kid," one of the most famous bank sneak thieves in the world, and who attempted to rob the vault of the Baltimore Savings bank on September 9, 1881, is under arrest in Stockholm, Sweden, according to letters from the Swedish police to Marshal Farnam.

Suspends Rule Against Xmas Seals.

Washington.—Postmaster General Hitchcock has suspended until January 1 the postal regulation forbidding the transmission through the mails of matter bearing upon the address side Red Cross Christmas seals or other charity stamps. This suspension was caused by protests from business men and bankers, through the Red Cross, that important business mail had been delayed with serious consequences. From now until January 1 the Christmas seals may be placed anywhere on letters or packages.

The MAGIC of the MISTLETOE

GENEVIEVE HAZELRIGG

DRUIDS GATHERING MISTLETOE

Did you ever, as you officiated as high priest or priestess in the occultatory rites of yuletide, did you ever wonder what tradition, myth or superstition had conferred upon you such delectable privilege? Did you ever stop, in your ardent ceremonial, to consider that you were perpetuating one of the most hallowed and exalted of religious ordinances handed down through the ages in rendering such tender homage to this "orphan plant of wondrous birth?"

And would it not surprise you to learn that our very word "marry," and that our most impassioned of the graces of Terpsichore—the waltz—are traditionally enmeshed in the canny tendrils of the pearly-berried mistletoe?

The mistletoe is a freak plant, a parasite or excrement. In its embryonic period it is said to defy the laws of gravitation by pushing its radicles in the opposite direction to the generality of plants. Not only its berries but its leaves grow in clusters of three united on one stock, hence its sacred place in religious rites as a symbol of the Holy Trinity.

It was believed by the Druids and other ancient sects in northern and western Europe that any tree to which the mistletoe attaches itself is selected by God himself for special favor, and that all that grows on it is sent direct from heaven.

Contrary to the general belief, it is found more rarely on the oak tree than on the apple, ash, elm, poplar, willow and hawthorn, and it is due to this scarcity that it was vested with exceptional reverence when discovered clinging to the sacred tree of the Druids—a name derived from the Greek word drus, or druce, meaning an oak.

Says Pliny: "When it (mistletoe) growing upon an oak is discovered it is treated with great ceremony. They called it by a name (guthill, or guthyil—good heal), which in their language signifies the curer of all ills." After they have well and duly prepared their festive cheer under the tree, they bring hither a milk-white cow and a bullock, hitherto unyoked; then the priests in white vesture climb into the tree and prune off the sacred herb with a gold hook, bill or sickle, the branches falling beneath into a white saggum sheet. They must never touch the ground. The common people remain at a distance, formed in a circle, while the priests approach with trembling awe the bloody victims, which were carried around the omen fire. After this the animals are slaughtered as a sacrifice—doubtless to the goddess of fecundity, for the mistletoe is a symbol of the prolific.

In the myths of all nations we find a "holy tree," a "world tree." Among the Druids, as well as among other creeds, this tree was the oak; and it is a very interesting thing to know that our word church—from kirk—finds its root in querrus, the generic name for the oak. This tree was cherished as the mother and nurse of man, and was supposed to be the dwelling place of the food-dispensing god. The ominous rustling of the leaves and the mysterious notes of the feathered songsters signaled the presence of the divinity to the awe-struck votaries who consulted the indwelling oracle, burning odoriferous fumes in homage. The Dodonean oak and its oracle are celebrated in epic, myth and story, its mystic ritual being zealously perpetuated by the Druids. They danced circular dances in consecrated groves, and the remnants of an old chant still preserved by the Celts—Hey Derry Down Dey, "in a circle the oak moves around"—reveals the archetype of our modern waltz.

Another reminder that "the groves were God's first temples" is found in the arches and vaulted roofs of Gothic church architecture, revered tokens of the bending arches of intertwined boughs. The Yuletide custom of decking our churches and our homes with boughs, wreaths and garlands finds its antecedence in heathen sanctuaries.

The spirit of Christmas is most magnanimously manifested in York, England, where they carry mistletoe boughs to the high altar of the cathedral and proclaim "a public and universal liberty, pardon and freedom to all sorts of inferior and wicked people." They suspend it under the chancel arch and bear it to the city gates, toward the four quarters of heaven.

In the varied nomenclature of the word "mistletoe," according to the nationalities concerned, do we discover the magical virtues with which the weird plant is invested. Dr. Johnson says the word is derived from mistion, state of being mingled, tod or too bush. In German it is mistel, mixed, and Saxon tan (Danish tiene, Dutch teene), twig, sprig. In Armenian, Welsh and Irish it is all yach, or its equivalent for all heal; and Pliny calls it omnia sanans, a term of similar import.

In upper Germany on Christmas morning they go about knocking on each other's doors, shouting "Gut heil," the synonym for the Druid name. In Brittany it is the herb de la Croix, which heals fevers and gives strength for wrestling. At the time of George I, it was called lignum sancta crucis—wood of the holy cross—so highly were its medicinal properties esteemed.

Hung about the neck it renders witches powerless. It is used in houses to drive out evil spirits. It is an amulet against poisons, and the inhabitants of Elgin and Moray keep it as charms. Throughout Britannia it had a place assigned to it in every kitchen, and a young man was deemed to have the right to kiss any lassie caught beneath the cherished branch, plucking off a berry with each kiss. If a maid were not kissed under the mistletoe it was a sign that she would not marry during the ensuing year, a tradition still prevailing. Even Mr. Pickwick availed himself of the pleasant privilege despite his oft-quoted injunction. To dream of mistletoe pre-figures wealth, and in the language of flowers it signifies: I surmount all difficulties.

The Cymric, Celtic, Gaelic, Teutonic

and Norse traditions all emphasize the exorcising, as well as the amatory propensities of the waken spray. The Scandinavians have it consecrated to Freya, or Freyja—"from whom flows every blessing, the winning smile, the melting kiss." She is the Venus of the Norse pantheon, the goddess of love, of peace, joy, laughter, fruitfulness, bringing increase "to field and stall," and also the tutelary deity presiding over nuptials and child birth.

A popular myth relates how Baldur, the wisest and noblest of the gods, is a victim of the inveterate hatred of Loki, the Satan of the Eddas. The demon is bent on the destruction of the pre-eminently good god, so he and his emissaries begin their persecutions by throwing missiles of all descriptions at Baldur, all of which prove harmless, since the deity is under the protection of his mother, Freyja. In desperation Loki, disguised as an old woman, is admitted to the celestial abode of Freyja, who innocently betrays the fact that all things had taken an oath to protect Baldur excepting the mistletoe, which, being a parasite, was too feeble to harm. In secret joy the demon hastens back to Baldur, on the way fashioning an arrow of mistletoe, which soon pierces the heart of the divinity. After a sojourn in Hell—or Hades—the peaceful abode of the dead, the Saviour is restored to life, and on his resurrection he consecrates the mistletoe to Freyja—all of which enshrouds divine truths in image and symbol.

Astrologically Venus governs the mistletoe, as well as the lips, and all the tender demonstrations of Love, so let us ever propitiate the benignant goddess and—

"Hang up Love's mistletoe over the earth,
And let us kiss under it all the year round."

DISTRIBUTING CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Last year we bought a large, flat clothes basket, draped it with white cheese cloth, and trimmed it with holly, and then filled it with our Christmas packages for the family.

We went into the room one at a time and deposited our gifts, and when the pile was completed, spread a large sheet of holly crepe paper on top.

We sat around the dining room table with the basket in the center; and the youngest member of the family took the gifts from the basket. Only one package was presented at a time and the recipient opened it and all saw and admired it before passing on to the next.

We had original verses and apt quotations written on many of the bundles which the distributor read aloud and all enjoyed the fun.—House-keeper.

One Kind of Emptiness.

Two hunters had "beaten" the trail along the marshes of Long Island for three days with an unusually small bag resulting. The food supply had run out much ahead of scheduled time; far worse, the "liquid ammunition" had been exhausted in the early stages of the hunt.

After following the coast vainly for three hours, looking for some sign of habitation, they spied an empty house on the beach.

"Go in and look it over, Bill," said one.

He did so, returning in a moment empty-handed.

"Anything in there?" asked his companion, expectantly.

"Nope," replied his running mate, with a profound sigh—"nothing but two empty bottles full of water."—Everybody's Magazine.

The Bible The Word of God

By Rev. Barry B. Hall, Pastor of Temple Baptist Church, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

All that comes from God must be perfect, complete. No so. Both the world and man came from God, and neither is perfect or complete. So the Bible came from God, although parts of it are crude and imperfect. The Bible, like all other things, is the result of development and growth. The patriarchs were in God's school and their ethical code was not completed until Christ came and fulfilled (completed) it. Certainly an ethical code allowing polygamy and 'an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth,' is crude and imperfect. But since Jesus completed that code no man has been able either to add to or take from it. It is the only code of ethics man has ever known that stands unchanged and unchangeable throughout the ages.

There are but two things in the visible world that do not die—an immortal soul and God's word. The Bible is a living thing. The spirit of secession is dead, but the spirit of union still lives. So all other ethical codes are either dead or dying, but the words of Jesus, which are increasingly exercising a greater influence over the destiny of both men and nations. Unlike all other books, it never becomes obsolete. All other books but the Bible which are a few hundred years old are obsolete and out of date. The Bible never grows old; it never dies. It is a living, growing thing. It grows on one; the rereading of familiar passages gives new light, and impresses one with the greatness of the book.

The more one studies it with a reverent spirit the more its greatness looms up before him, and as his capacity to see more truth grows, the more truth he finds in the word. Every combination of social conditions only draws out of the Word new truth and more light.

All other books flourish best in the language in which they were written, but the Bible flows freely into all molds and lends itself with freedom to every language and dialect. It alone is adapted to all classes and conditions of people. It is a discoverer of the human heart, and reveals all men to themselves. It reveals to all races of men their motives, needs and sins. An educated Hindu, on hearing a passage read from the word, said, "That Book exactly describes us Indians."

The Bible is indestructible. It survives all attempts to destroy it. Yet it is hated as no other book because it condemns man and claims authority over him. Rome tried to burn it, and some of the greatest scholars of all the ages have tried to destroy it, but both alike miserably failed. Thomas Paine thought his "Age of Reason" would put the Bible out of print in fifty years, and thousands thought that Darwin's "Descent of Man" had destroyed it at one stroke, but they were deceived. Darwin really discovered nothing new, for both Moses and Chris. were Theistic evolutionists. Evolution does not destroy the idea of a Creator; it only gives the Creator's method of creation.

The Bible stands unapproached as a life-giving book. It awakens dead nations and gives them new life. Christian nations, since the Bible was printed in the sixteenth century, have become responsible for all the world's advancement in science, literature, invention, commerce and discovery. When the open Bible came into Japan she awoke, received new life, arose and defeated Russia, a land without an open Bible. The open Bible has gone into China, and she is at this moment giving birth to a new republic. Laboring men, once but beasts of burden, under the influence of an open Bible, have ceased to be beasts of burden and have come to be men. The Bible is also a life-transforming book. It revolutionizes the lives of both nations and men. When Titus took Jerusalem, 1,100,000 of the Jewish people were put to the sword, many thousands were sold into slavery, and thousands were sold to make sport by being butchered or torn into pieces in the arena. When America took Cuba and the Philippines she banished yellow fever from the island and established a republic for the people, and in one ship she sent 600 teachers to the Philippines. Certainly a marvelous transformation. And it is also true of the individual; no man can habitually read the book with a reverent spirit without becoming a nobler, a truer and a better man.

Is the Bible the word of God? Have the civilizations of earth ever produced a book that could compare with it; has any other book ever exercised such an influence over the nations of earth; has any other book ever transformed the lives of men as the Bible has; is any other book a living book and indestructible as the Bible is? If this book is a book the like of which the civilizations of earth have not and cannot produce, then it was not produced by man alone, and therefore it must be the word of God, given in earthen vessels, to be sure, but the word of God.

Wanted—A Great Motive.

Lack of definite moral purpose on the part of many of its professors hinders the progress of the cause of Christ. The man who, like Gehazi, is forced to say of himself, "Thy servant went no whither," is a drawback to any association, church or otherwise, with which he is connected. A Frenchwoman once said: "I begin to write because I have nothing to do; I finish because I have nothing to say." Many people, if they were frank, would make a similar confession—they begin some task because they see no thing particular to do in any other direction, and they quickly desist because their resources of imagination and zeal run out. What is needed in American society is an addition to the incentives of life. Americans need to get a great motive—which will prove to be the co-ordinating principle in their busy, often fussy life—and that motive is to be found alone in the service of Jesus the Christ.—Zion's Herald.

Christ's Words.

There is a strange quality about words of Christ that belongs to no other words that ever were spoken. They arrest the attention, they penetrate the heart, they abide in the memory as no other words do. They carry with them an authority that is indescribable, a finality that hushes argument. They are living words. Planted in the heart they constantly exercise a restraining and transforming power. Issuing from the lips they seem to bear with them the balsam of paradise. Read in hours of sorrow or despondency they revive hope and dissolve doubts and fears. What wonder that Mary sat at his feet to listen and that the officers sent to arrest, returning empty-handed, reported, "Never man spoke like this man." They are a comfort, a joy, and defence to all who heed them.

Live in the Spirit.

The inner life, the life of the spirit, and the outer life of action, of conduct, continually act and react on each other. The inner life cannot continue to exist when the outer life becomes inconsistent; and the power of the outer life is dependent upon the spiritual vitality of the inner. The eating of the hidden manna is both the secret and the reward of victory. They that live in God live for him.

Facial Beauty.

One in every two women we see in New York paints her cheeks to get face beauty. This is not so generally true in other sections of the country, but New York sets the pace for the whole country. Once the painted cheek was rare and did not mark respectability.—Rev. C. F. Kelsner.

How it must puzzle angels to make out why we kill snakes and tolerate saloons.

Used to Be Stork.

Louis Zeltner, fusion nominee for alderman in the Fourth district, was launching a campaign speech from the tail end of a cart in Columbia street when a young man rushed up and pulled at his coat, relates the New York Herald. The speaker resented the interruption, but the intruder was persistent. Mr. Zeltner started to say something about Tammany Hall methods of breaking up a meeting when the young man jumped on the cart and whispered in the perspiring candidate's left ear. The look of wrath gave way to a broad smile as the nominee asked: "Is it a boy or girl?" "Girl," said the informant, and Mr. Zeltner left the cart without completing the attack on Tammany. Later he informed the fusion leaders that he was sure of winning, as luck had come with the eighth member of his family.

Criticism and Honor.

Any fool can criticize, but only an honorable man can honor.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

ATTITUDE OF MEDICAL MEN

Use of Alcohol for Medicinal Purposes Rapidly Diminishing—Does Not Stimulate Heart.

Dr. Richard C. Cabot contributes the following explanation as to the present day attitude of physicians towards alcohol:

"The use of alcohol as a medicine is steadily and rapidly diminishing. It is true that the use of all drugs has also fallen off considerably, but this change is more striking as regards alcohol. There are three main purposes for which alcohol has been used as medicine:

(1) As a quick stimulant—for fainting, exhaustion, and extreme cold. This service doctors now generally agree is better performed by hot coffee, hot tea or hot soup. The heat is the main thing.

(2) As a support to the heart in heart disease and in fevers. Here the use of alcohol still continues, but it is constantly and steadily diminishing, because research has shown that it does not stimulate a bad or good heart action, as was formerly supposed. Some physicians believe that alcohol helps the patient in his fight against the germs, but the weight of opinion is against this. By most physicians alcohol is still occasionally used in fevers and in diabetes for a purpose still to be mentioned.

(3) As a food. Though alcohol is undoubtedly a poison to the nervous system this harmful effect is neutralized in some cases of illness by the fact that it does supply fuel and energy to the body. When other foods are rejected (wholly or in part) by the stomach or when, as in diabetes, certain common foods cease to benefit the body, alcohol may be valuable, but this is comparatively rare."

In a recent article in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal Dr. Cabot contributed some interesting figures showing the diminished use of alcohol in the Massachusetts General hospital. The figures, showing also diminished use of other drugs as well, have been arranged in both tabular and chart form and used as an exhibit at the Boston "1915" exposition.

In 1898 the hospital expended a total for alcohol drinks of $2,322, or 46 cents per patient. These figures were increased the following year to $3,002, or 57 cents per patient. Since that time there has been a steady decrease, and in 1907 the total cost of alcoholic stimulants used was but $813, or 13 cents per patient. During the same period the cost of other medicines administered also decreased, not because of lessened prices for drugs, but because fewer medicines of any sort are now administered.

EFFECT OF SMALL QUANTITY

Backbone of Contentment That Moderate Drinking is Harmless Has Been Thoroughly Broken.

The backbone of the contention that moderate drinking is harmless has been now so thoroughly broken that physicians do not hesitate to express unequivocal convictions upon the subject. Thus Dr. A. W. Ives, in the Detroit Medical Journal, says:

"It is not pretended that there are in these cases (moderate users) pathologic changes due to alcohol, but even where there is as yet no such demonstrable change, there is a disturbance in the cranial circulation and a drug effect causing defective cerebration, loss of will power; loss of the power to think, and judge up to one's normal; there is a reduction of intellect. There generally is, however, increased gullibility, loquacity, and a well-recognized inability to judge of just the impression one is creating, of the kind of an exhibition one is making of himself. A drug that can bring a brain's function to the point of coma cannot, even in mild doses, add anything to the power of that brain."

"It is the most subtle and far-reaching of all poisons. . . . It tends to shorten life. . . . Its influences are strongly hereditary."

TOPERS IN LONDON SCHOOLS

Investigator Reports Habit of Drinking Alcohol Among Children Widespread in English City.

"Do children drink alcohol?"

The question was put to F. G. Mackereth of London, who has been making inquiry into the matter, and he made answer at a meeting of the Women's Temperance league which greatly horrified the good women there. In one school alone, he said, he found that 40 per cent of the children were regular alcohol drinkers.

In fact, from the investigations he had made he had come to the conclusion that there must be something like 300,000 child drinkers in London, and probably 2,000,000 in the large towns and districts. Parents, in sheer ignorance, often gave their children strong drink because they thought it was good for them, and a woman present at the meeting volunteered the information that she knew for a fact in some public schools beer was almost compulsory.

CABLE

Berea was fortunate in capturing a visit from the great Southern author, George W. Cable, who was visiting with family friends in Versailles and came over for a day's visit to Berea.

Mr. Cable was a native of New Orleans and a young soldier of the Confederacy. He was a man of intelligence and realized even in those days that he was contending for a cause that ought to be lost. Already he was a contributor to the New Orleans Picayune, and when his first book appeared he sprang at once to the first rank of American novelists.

And he is more than a story teller. His novels present profound studies in statesmanship, and his interest in the Reconstruction problems of the South has been continuous. He visited Berea as long ago as 1885, when Roswell Smith was here and made the great gift of Lincoln Hall. And he has been a steady helper of President Frost.

There was an informal reception at the President's House, attended by members of the convocation and a few prominent citizens. He dined at the Tavern with the College faculty, and gave a reading from his own works to a great audience, Monday night, the chief selection being the story of a Louisiana school teacher, Bonaventure. The Creole songs which followed it were something wonderful. Tuesday morning in Chapel he delivered a masterly and impressive address on political ideals, which we shall reproduce in The Citizen next week.

PRIDE OF BEREA

One of the chief prides of our school and village is the Harmonia society, composed of more than a hundred musical people, students, teachers and citizens, who, under the training and direction of Prof. Rigby, furnish some of the best entertainments of the year. The crowning one of these is the Christmas concert. The subject of this concert is most naturally and appropriately Handel's great work, the oratorio of The Messiah. This oratorio, to be best rendered and best appreciated, must be heard more than once. It has been given for two or three years past and will be given this year under better auspices than ever. Distinguished soloists are to be present from Cincinnati, each one of them an artist who might give a full program alone. But the great effect is the magnificent chorus, something rarely heard and never to be forgotten.

The intention is to make this a joy for every person in Berea, and the admission fee has been placed at the merely nominal sum of fifteen cents. This will not cover the actual expenses unless a great number are present. The persons who take part, besides the soloists, are as follows:

say that school is a success. I don't say this myself, but the good people of the town aid me in saying so. I have a class of twenty-nine boys and girls and we are having a little world and life of our own up in "The Central School" building. I give them lots of work and they grind it out. We have examinations any "old day," they never know what to expect. I am superintendent of the Sunday school of the First Baptist church here. This morning I gave a chalk talk like those Prof. Raine gives. The people were so well pleased with it that they asked me to keep it up.

I am sending you one of the pictures we had taken while out on our hunt. You may be able to recognize me on the left. Another is Mr. Bowman from Berea. We were about eight thousand feet above sea level when this was taken. You see snow in front of the house, that has accumulated now until it is five and six feet deep. The folks have gone away to Omaha for the winter and the little hut is left alone.

I guess Berea is resting still as ever. Do you know why I say resting? It is because the wind and dust is so awful bad here that I have come to think of Berea as a resting place.

But it was never so for me. I always had to work very hard in Berea, the main cause I suppose was that I paid most of my expenses by work while in school. I get just a little bit home sick some times but I am here for the year.

Well, I hope to be able to come back to Berea and finish my course some time, maybe next year.

With all best wishes, I am,

SERIAL
STORYThe Courtship
of Miles
StandishWith Illustrations

The March of Miles Standish

Meanwhile the stalwart Miles Standish was marching steadily northward, winding through forest and swamp, and along the trend of the seashore. All day long, with hardly a halt, the fire of his anger burning and crackling within, and the sulphurous odor of powder seeming more sweet to his nostrils than all the scents of the forest. Silent and moody he went, and much he revolved his discomfort. He who was used to success, and to easy victories always, thus to be flouted, rejected, and laughed to scorn by a maiden, thus to be mocked and betrayed by the friend whom most he had trusted! Ah! 'twas too much to be borne, and he fretted and chafed in his armor!

"I alone am to blame," he muttered, "for mine was the folly. What has a rough old soldier, grown grim and gray in the harness, used to the camp and its ways, to do with the wooing of maidens? 'Twas but a dream—let it pass—let it vanish like so many others! What I thought was a flower, is only a weed, and is worthless. Out of my heart will I pluck it, and throw it away, and henceforward be but a fighter of battles, a lover, and wooer of dangers!"

Thus he revolved in his mind his sorry defeat and discomfort. While he was marching by day or lying at night in the forest, looking up at the trees, and the constellations beyond them.

After a three days' march he came to an Indian encampment pitched on the edge of a meadow, between the sea and the forest. Women at work by the tents, and the warriors, horrid with war-paint, seated about a fire, and smoking and talking together; who, when they saw from afar the sudden approach of the white men, Forth He Sprang at a Bound.

Saw the flash of the sun on breast-plate and saber and musket, straightway leaped to their feet, and two, from among them advancing, came to parley with Standish, and offer him furs as a present. Friendship was in their looks, but in their hearts there was hatred. Braves of the tribe were these, and brothers gigantic in stature. Huge as Goliath of Gath, or the terrible Og, king of Bashan; one was Pecksnot named, and the other was called Wattawamat. Round their necks were suspended their knives in scabbards of wampum. Two-edged, trenchant knives, with points as sharp as a needle. Other arms had they none, for they were cunning and crafty.

"Welcome, English!" they said, these words they had learned from the traders. Touching at times on the coast, to barter and chaffer for peltries. Then in their native tongue they began to parley with Standish. Through his guide and interpreter, Hobomok, friend of the white man, begging for blankets and knives, but mostly for muskets and powder. Kept by the white man, they said, concealed, with the plague, in his cellars. Ready to be let loose, and destroy his brother, the red man! But when Standish refused, and said he would give them the Bible. Suddenly changing their tone, they began to boast and to bluster. Then Wattawamat advanced, with a stride in front of the other, and, with a lofty demeanor, thus vauntingly spoke to the Captain: "Now Wattawamat can see, by the fiery eyes of the Captain, Angry is he in his heart; but the heart of the brave Wattawamat is not afraid at the sight. He was not born of a woman. But on a mountain, at night, from an oak-tree riven by lightning. Forth he sprang at a bound, with all his weapons about him, shouting, 'Who is there here to fight with the brave Wattawamat?'" Then he unsheathed his knife, and, whetting the blade on his left hand, held it aloft and displayed a woman's face on the handle.

writ in the days of the fathers. But when he heard their defiance, the boast, the taunt, and the insult. All the hot blood of his race, of Sir Hugh and of Thurston de Standish, boiled and beat in his heart, and swelled in the veins of his temples. Headlong he leaped on the boaster, and, snatching his knife from its scabbard, plunged it into his heart, and, reeling backward, the savage fell with his face to the sky, and a fiendlike fierceness upon it. Straight there arose from the forest the awful sound of the war-whoop. And, like a flurry of snow on the whistling wind of December, Swift and sudden and keen came a flight of feathered arrows. Then came a cloud of smoke, and out of the cloud came the lightning, and of the lightning, thunder, and death unseen ran before it. Frightened the savages fled for shelter in swamp and in thicket. Hotly pursued and beset; but their sachem, the brave Wattawamat, fled not; he was dead. Unswerving and swift had a bullet passed through his brain, and he fell with both hands clutching the greensward. Seeming in death to hold back from his foe the land of his fathers.

There on the flowers of the meadow the warriors lay, and above them, Silent, with folded arms, stood Hobomok, friend of the white man.

Plunged it into His Heart.

Saying, with bitter expression and look of sinister meaning: "I have another at home, with the face of a man on the handle; By and by they shall marry; and there will be plenty of children!"

Then stood Pecksnot forth, self-vaunting, insulting Miles Standish. While with his fingers he patted the knife that hung at his bosom, drawing it half from its sheath, and plunging it back, as he muttered: "By and by it shall see; it shall eat; ah, ah! but shall speak not! This is the mighty Captain the white men have sent to destroy us! He is a little man; let him go and work with the women!"

Meanwhile Standish had noted the faces and figures of Indians. Peeping and creeping about from bush to tree in the forest, feigning to look for game, with arrows set on their bow-strings, drawing about him still closer and closer the net of their ambush. But undaunted he stood, and dissembled and treated them smoothly; so the old chronicles say, that were

BIGGEST CITIES OF WORLD

London Still Far in Lead, but New York is Growing Faster Than Any Other.

London, the largest city in the world, has a population, as now officially announced, of 7,252,963, as against 6,581,402 in 1901—an increase in ten years of 671,561, or only 10.2 per cent. The population of New York is 4,766,883, and with a gain in the ten years of 38.7 per cent., is growing faster than any other great city in the world. At the rate at which the two largest cities are growing it will take a long time for New York to catch up with London; but it would be a great misfortune if it ever did catch up—there is too much congestion in New York already. The third city in size is Paris, whose population is probably 3,000,000. The fourth city is perhaps Berlin, which had a little over 2,000,000 five years ago. Tokyo and Chicago fall a little under the 2,500,000 mark, and St. Petersburg, Vienna, Canton, Peking, Moscow and Philadelphia are below 2,000,000.—Rochester Post-Express.

Women are now engaged in all but two of the 393 gainful occupations of the men of this country.

WILD SCRAMBLE OF WOMEN

London Paper Tells of Scene in Cloakroom After the Racing at Ascot.

At the end of the racing at Ascot yesterday it seems that the cloakroom arrangements miscarried, and when the women went to get their wraps they were not ready to hand. A wild report circulated that the thief who stole the gold cup four years ago had been busy in the cloakroom and all the women rushed to find for themselves if the dreadful thing were true. There has not been such an outbreak of feminine excitement since the last suffragist raid on the house of commons, and the attendants grew so alarmed and were so afraid of the cloakroom being stormed by the angry owners of the precious wraps that they sent for the police. When the constables came several ladies fled ignominiously without their things. The police ultimately straightened out the tangle and the honor of Ascot was saved. The cause of the commotion is said to have been the action of some women who left early and put everything in confusion in the search for their cloaks.—London Express.

PREDICT NEW GOVERNMENT.

Details of the Persian Situation Discussed by English.

London.—Details as to the advance of the Russian troops in Persia have been kept for several days completely in the dark. How large a force has been dispatched by the Russian government, and particularly as to its movement, are unknown in London, but he public generally feels that the end will be the establishment of a Russian protectorate over the best parts of Persia, including the two northern capitals, Tabriz and Tehran. Newspapers and politicians generally regard it as unlikely that Russia, once entrenched in Persia, will ever withdraw. The Teheran correspondent of the Times predicts a new form of government for that of the national council. W. Morgan Shuster, the American treasurer-general in Persia, whose dismissal was demanded by Russia, is held responsible for bringing the Persian troubles to a crisis. All officials, as well as the newspapers, credit him with efficiency and good intentions, but accuse him of lacking diplomatic tact.

Sarah Bernhardt Denies Rumor.

Paris.—Two causes were assigned why Sarah Bernhardt will not marry Cadran, the young Greek actor. First, her son, Maurice Bernhardt, has opposed the union most strenuously from the first. The tragedienne has long been dominated by her son's wishes, and without his consent she will never marry at all. All her spare time and spare money goes to her son.

Mme. Bernhardt said: "Please tell my American friends that I am not marrying a Greek, nor a barbarian, nor a Jew, nor a Gentile. When next I visit America my friends will find me fancy free, as formerly. Why I am not to be married is best explained in the following letter, which I have written to my friend, Editor Calmette, of the Figaro: "Will you kindly grant hospitality to these lines: I deny energetically all the reports saying I am about to marry, soon or late. I am a mother, a grandmother and a great-grandmother three times, of which I am proud, and which make further comment unnecessary."

Fatalities of a Charivari Party.

Mt. Eden, Ky.—Frank Armstrong, aged 20, was probably fatally hurt and his father, Dudley Armstrong, and a companion, Amar Richardson, were seriously injured by an explosion of gunpowder during the progress of a charivari party which followed the wedding of Frank Reynolds, of this country. One of the phases of the charivari was the firing of an anvil. The too-rapid firing of the iron caused it to get hot, which resulted in young Armstrong being horribly mangled when he set about recharging the anvil. A large package of powder which he carried in his hands let go when he stooped over the iron. Richardson was tending near, and was fearfully burned about the head and face. Armstrong's father was injured while trying to beat out the flames when his son's clothing became ignited.

Bomb Causes Terrible Panic.

Liege, Belgium.—A dynamite bomb exploded during a crowded cinematograph exhibition. A terrible panic ensued in which 50 persons were injured, several of them mortally. The police believe that a discharged employe threw the bomb for revenge.

Protest Against Reduction.

A conference of about twenty-five members of the Republican national committee was held in Washington to protest against the old threat to reduce southern representation in Republican national conventions.

Persia is endeavoring to effect a compromise so that she may be able to retain the services of W. Morgan Shuster.

Every man and woman is anxious to buy some article—necessity or luxury—every day of his or her life. Single handed it would take you months to seek out those interested in your line of business.

An advertisement in this paper does the work instantaneously. It corrals the purchaser—brings him to your store—makes him buy things you advertised.

Enlarging Your Business

If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in hazardous fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?

Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.

Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 30 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to year you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.

If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.

We will be pleased to have you call on us, and we will take pleasure in explaining our annual contract for so many inches, and how it can be used in whatever amount that seems necessary to you.

If you can sell goods over the counter we can also show you why this paper will best serve your interests when you want to reach the people of this community.

The Right Kind of Reading Matter

The home news; the doings of the people in this town; the gossip of our own community, that's the first kind of reading matter you want. It is more important, more interesting to you than that given by the paper or magazine from the outside world. It is the first reading matter you should buy. ## REMOVING A LARGE BRANCH

Cut Should Be Made Parallel With Main Stem From Which One Is To Be Removed.

(By W. S. THORNER, Washington.)

In the removal of large branches from old or bearing trees always make the cut parallel with the branch or main stem from which the one is removed. This frequently means a larger wound than it would make if the cut is made at right angles to the limb that is to be removed, but such wounds will heal quicker and are much less injurious to the tree than the much smaller ones that leave the collar of the branch to be covered with healing tissue. Do not hesitate to remove large useless or superfluous limbs from trees, but always make smooth, clean cuts with a saw, and if necessary to prevent splitting the stem or peeling the bark, make two cuts—the first from six to twelve inches out from where the limb is to be finally cut off. Nothing can be applied to the wound to hasten the healing.

2. Branch broken down from cut wrongly made.
3. Dead stub left to rot back.

PROPER GRADING OF APPLES

One Excellent Method Is to Construct Wooden Trough With Different Sized Holes.

An excellent method of grading apples is described by Ray Malcolm in the Farm and Fireside as follows: Make a trough, mounted on legs, with a receiving box as shown in drawing. Cut two holes, one larger than the other, in trough. These holes grade the apples by letting small ones drop through first hole, second or medium ones through second hole, while large ones roll out at end of trough. The trough must be mounted high enough so as not to tire the operator, for one person will have to keep the large and medium-sized apples out of the small hole and the large out of the medium hole. This can be accomplished best by reaching hand under trough and knocking apples up out of the holes.

Food Value of Fruit.

Here are a few facts worth considering. Baked apples are more nutritious than baked potatoes, and will produce more work. Dates, prunes, figs, apricots and raisins are dried fruits always available. Instead of looking upon them as merely supplemental to food—like confectionery—we should remember that they are really among the most healthful, palatable and concentrated of vegetable foods.

Among fresh fruits, bananas, apples, figs, grapes, blackberries, strawberries and oranges have decided food value and may be used as economical sources of nourishment.

Some Fruit Trees for Poultry.

It seems that there is no doubt that the plum tree is the fruit best suited for the poultry yard. Frequently the plum trees in the poultry yard are the only ones on the place that bear crops. The benefit comes from the destruction of every insect that gets on or near the ground, either in fallen fruit or otherwise. Then the fertility distributed around the roots furnishes abundant available food for all of the trees damaged.

Of course, plum trees for the poultry yard should be pruned high. Three or four feet for the first limb will be about right.

CARE IN HANDLING APPLES

Few People Appreciate Importance of Preventing Bruises While Picking or Packing.

(By S. VAN SMITH.)

Few people realize the importance of handling apples with care while picking, packing and marketing. Apples are bruised very easily, and especially those varieties having a tender flesh or skin. Bruises mean not only an unattractive appearance, but a real waste of fruit by having to cut out the bruised tissue. Probably the greatest damage from bruises, however, results from the fact that the bruises furnish an entrance for fungus or rot spores. These spores, or "fungus seeds," are as fine as dust and float in the air. If they happen to lodge on a bruised or broken spot on the apple, they take root and grow and spread through the apple, causing it to rot. Wrapping or covering the apple may not always protect it, as the spores may have lodged on the apple before it was picked. However, if the skin and flesh of the apple can be kept intact and not bruised or broken, there is not much danger of the fungus or rot finding its way into the apple.

To prevent bruising, apples should not be dropped or thrown into a bucket, box, or barrel, and in pouring from one vessel to another care should be taken that the apples are as close as possible to the bottom of the vessel in which you are placing them before the pouring begins.

KILL THE PEACH BORER NOW

Do Not Wait Until Spring, for Then Eggs Will Be Hatched and Insects Scattered.

(By W. H. UNDERWOOD.)

Go to your blacksmith with a ten or twelve inch flat file and have five or six inches of the small end made into the shape of a sharp-pointed knife blade with one side of the blade flat and the other half round.

Both edges of the blade must be sharp.

Hold this blade to a crescent shape, with the flat side on the inside of the bend. Put a good handle on and you have an instrument with which you can sit down to a tree and scrape all sides of it without moving. The diameter of this bend should be at least three inches.

After the first frosts, go through the peach orchard with this little instrument, scraping the bodies of the trees at least two inches from the surface of the ground.

A small diamond or half-diamond shaped hoe, with a handle not over two feet long, is another tool you must have to get over the trees rapidly.

In the late fall, most all eggs have hatched out, and most of the little grubs will be between the earth and bark, within a few inches of the top of the soil. In scraping the rough bark or outside of the bark of the tree, you will get 95 per cent. of them.

In the spring go over the trees again. In three or four days after going over the trees the second time, go over them a third time. Then you can readily see all you have missed the second going over. In the third going over draw the soil back to the trees, leaving the dirt a little the lowest at the base of the trees.

When the apples are stored see that not a single rotten one is included. All our small fruits are benefited by some slight protection during the winter.

Raspberries are best protected by covering with clean straw or marsh hay.

Burn the trash raked from the garden and orchard. Fire is a sure remedy for bugs.

It is usually better to protect raspberries over winter by burying in the soil in the more northern localities.

If you have not already done so you should go over the orchard and rake up every rotten apple on the ground, haul them away from the orchard and destroy them.

The secret of dwarfing is to starve the trees. The Japanese produce oaks of great age but which are so small that they can be held in one hand like an ordinary house plant. If dead and unsightly limbs have not been taken off the trees, now is a good time to do so. Paint with white lead the place from which the limb came. Cut close to the tree, and do a clean, smooth job.

In the northwest the state experiment stations are working on the production of special dwarfed trees for the prairie regions. Standard stock is grafted on certain roots such as very small growth as quince or wild apple.

THREE HORSE EVENER FOR ROAD WAGON IS ILLUSTRATED

Blacksmith Furnishes Hitch Shown in Accompanying Illustration Which He Has Often Made and Will Answer the Purpose For Which It Is Designed in Satisfactory Manner.

Three-Horse Evener for Wagon.

In reply to a query a diagram of a three-horse evener is given, the idea being for two horses to walk in the road and one on the outside.

In the first place, if two horses are to work on one side of the tongue there will be some side draft to be equalized, hence there must be some way of doing this so that each horse will be drawing his proportionate share of the load. The accompanying cut illustrates the appearance of the evener, a portion of the tongue and axle of the wagon viewed from beneath. H is the axle. B is a block of wood fastened under the hole where the King pin comes through so that the iron bar A will be allowed to move back and forth under the axle, free from the obstruction of any nuts or bolts that may be there. The bar A is a flat piece of iron 2 1/2 to 3 inches wide and one-half to five-eighths inches thick, fastened at I by means of the King pin being lengthened sufficiently and having a key in its end to hold it in place. One arm of this bar A is twice as long as the other, good lengths being twelve and six inches, respectively. J is the point of attachment for the ordinary wagon double-tree. Instead of having the ordinary double-tree here, two pieces of flat iron, D and E are used, E being twice as long as D. These two arms articulate at J, the wagon hammer holding them in place instead of the double-tree. The diagram shows these to be fastened underneath the tongue. This is for greater clearness in illustration. In practice they should rest on top of the tongue just the same as the ordinary double-tree. The two rods, C, connect D and E with the bar A, under the axle as shown. The single-tree F fastens onto the end of D and the double-tree G onto the end of E. Thus a hitch for three horses is provided, the draft is equalized, and there are two horses on one side of the tongue and one on the other. A sickle bar from a cast off mower is good material for the bar A. Show this diagram to your blacksmith and if he is any good he can make an evener that will answer the purpose splendidly, where three horses are required on the wagon.

RAISING CALVES FOR THE DAIRY

Young Animals Need Milk for a While as Much as Babies and to Keep Growing Must Have It.

(By J. W. INGHAM, Pennsylvania.)

In order to raise cattle in the east with any profit, or without loss, we must have one or the other of the beef breeds. The Shorthorns, Herefords and Aberdeen Angus, are all good and each has its admirers. I prefer the Shorthorns because the cows are generally the better milkers.

Whatever others may think they can do, or have done, I can't raise good calves on dishwater, milk slop and hay tea. Young calves need milk for a while as much as babies and to keep them growing right along they must have it.

We prefer to have our cows calve in the fall, both on account of winter dairying and for raising the calves, which if kept in a warm stable during the winter and fed milk, hay and meal will sooner obtain the size most profitable for their disposal to the butcher.

Our calves, when taken from their mothers, are each provided with a separate pen for convenience in feeding so they need not fight for the food bucket, rob each other of their mess, or suck each others ears and navels when done drinking.

The latter is a vicious habit which they soon acquire when two or more are penned together and unless prevented it soon causes a blemish on the belly.

Each calf is provided with a feeding bucket in a box which is nailed fast to the side of the pen. This prevents the bucket from being upset and the milk spilled by the calves' greedy butting, otherwise the feeder, for safety, would have to stand and hold it while the calves were drinking.

As soon as we begin feeding the calves skim milk, which is about ten days after being taken from the cow, a handful of wheat middlings is put into the milk of each calf and the calves are fed twice a day.

The quantity is gradually increased until a pint or more can be fed to advantage twice a day. After they have become fond of the middlings it is better to feed it to them dry instead of putting it into the milk so that they will have to eat it slower instead of gobbling it down.

Oats, corn and rye ground together make good feed for calves in addition to milk, but there is more danger in feeding this kind of meal than middlings as it is more likely to produce diarrhoea or scours. A little flaxseed meal will improve the ration and supply the place of other foods.

Before they are four weeks old they are fed a little hay, or rowen, in addition to their milk and meal. There is more danger of feeding too much skim milk than too little, as too liberal feeding of it is apt to bring on the scours.

Some calves can stand more than others, but about five quarts at a mess twice a day is enough for any calf if it is supplied with hay, meal and water.

We provide our calves with water after they have drunk their milk and give them all they want. Skim milk should be warmed to blood heat before feeding to young calves.

Fed to calves, the milk makes them grow faster and pays as well as when fed to pigs. They are provided with a shelter in the pasture to go under when it storms or the sun is hot and they appreciate it highly.

LATEST NOVELTY IN IMPLEMENTS

Automobile Plow Is Invented by Kansas Man—Plowshares Held Down to Work by Weight Thereof.

In describing a recent invention of Oliver H. Lincoln and Edison O. Parkhurst of Brownell, Kan., the Scientific American says:

This invention, the sectional view of which is illustrated herewith, relates to automobile plows, and it has for its object to provide one, with traction wheels disposed near the front and at all times times in the same position relatively to the engine, whether the plow is being driven in a straight line or is being turned to one side or the other, the plowshares being disposed under the engine and being held down to their work by the weight thereof. By a movement of a lever the plowshares may be moved up or down to a position where they will engage the earth and will do the general work desired, these plowshares being secured to the lower frame having the transverse members.

Necessary for Good Shelter.

The birds must have access to shelter during the rainy weather. A thorough soaking when they are nearly bare of feathers, is apt to result in an attack of roup, or cause a chill that may throw the bird back for weeks. But the hen that gets through the molt early and quickly will almost invariably prove a good winter layer.

Relief for Ingrowing Feathers.

Sometimes when a fowl is thick in the molt it will be seen constantly pecking at one particular place on its body. This may be caused by one or more of the new feathers failing to pass through the skin and causing great irritation.

If a needle is passed under the covered end of the feather, it will enable it to be drawn above the skin.

Questions Answered

Berea, Friend of Working Students. Berea College, with its affiliated schools, is not a money-making institution. It requires certain fees, but it expends many thousands of dollars each year for the benefit of its students, giving highest advantages at lowest cost, and arranging for students to earn and save in every way.

OUR SCHOOL IS LIKE A FAMILY, with careful regulations to protect the character and reputation of the young people. Our students come from the best families and are earnest to do well and improve. For any who may be sick the College provides doctor and nurse without extra charge.

All except those with parents in Berea live in College buildings, and assist in work of boarding hall, farm and shops, receiving valuable training, and getting pay according to the value of their labor. Except in winter it is expected that all will have a chance to earn a part of their expenses. Write to the Secretary before coming to secure employment.

PERSONAL EXPENSES for clothing, laundry, postage, books, etc., vary with different people. Berea favors plain clothing. Our climate is the best, but as students must attend classes regardless of the weather, warm wraps and underclothing, umbrellas and overshoes are necessary. The Co-operative Store furnishes books, toilet articles, work uniforms, umbrellas and other necessary articles at cost.

LIVING EXPENSES are really below cost. The College asks no rent for the fine buildings in which students live, charging only enough room rent to pay for cleaning, repairs, fuel, lights, and washing of bedding and towels. For table board, without coffee or extras, $1.35 a week, in the fall, and $1.50 in winter. For furnished room, with fuel, lights, washing of bedding, 40 to 60 cents for each person.

SCHOOL FEES are two. First a "Dollor Deposit," as guarantee for return of room key, library books, etc. This is paid but once, and is returned when the student departs.

Second an "Incidental Fee" to help on expenses for care of school buildings, hospital, library, etc. (Students pay nothing for tuition or services of teachers—all our instruction is a free gift). The Incidental Fee for most students is $5.00 a term, $6.00 in Academy and Normal, and $7.00 in College courses.

PAYMENT MUST BE IN ADVANCE. Incidental fee and room rent by the term, board by the half term. Installments are as follows:

Plan Now, Come January 3d

Any able-bodied young man or young woman can get an education at Berea if there is the will to do so.

It is a great advantage to start in the Fall and have a full year of continuous study. Many young people waste time in the public schools going over and over the same things, when they might be improving much faster by coming to Berea and starting in on new studies with some of the best young men and women from other counties and States.

Make your plans to come January 3d.

For information or friendly advice write to the Secretary.

For now is Christ risen from the dead, the first fruits of them that sleep.

Job xix. 25, 26; Corinthians xv. 20.

QUARTET.—Since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

REC.—(Bass.)—Behold, I tell you a mystery: We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump.

1 Corinthians xv. 51, 52.

AIR.—(Bass.)—The trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.

1 Corinthians xv. 52, 53.

CHORUS.—Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, and hath redeemed us to God by His blood, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and blessing.

Blessing and honor, glory and power: be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, for ever and ever.—Amen.

Revelation v. 12, 14.
